LAST MONTH'S EVENTS THIS MONTH'S EVENTS

Well, as I said last month, the Carmichael Independence Day Parade was a great success for Cap City Mopars. We had 15 vehicles in the parade, 2 of us carrying Parade dignitaries. The crowd loved the show with all the tire smoke and noise - and no one got arrested, or even threatened this time! And to add to all that, I made it through without my car puking up its radiator! That's a win all 'round!

Moving on through the month, after a very tasty Brunch, the Downieville Museum drive was postponed, but we added in a BBQ at the invitation of Founding Members Linn and Toni Bloathner. Linn whipped up a gob of delish beef and chicken, and then took us on a tour of his shop and garage. He has more hemi engines lying around than he has cars to put 'em in, and he has nearly a dozen 60's and 70's muscle cars, most of the numbers matching, in various states of progress - including a ready-to-go Superbird. !!! Many many thanks to Linn and Toni for your hospitality! (Many of the photos in this issue are from this day)

Roseville Tuesday Nights is over for the year. A number of our members made it to one or more of those nights. Fun, food, (mostly) good music, and at least one member made out like a bandit, bringing home a First Place. Congrats Dave!

And as I (hopefully) put this issue to bed, a number of us are checking the oil and tire pressure, as we'll be taking our cars to show off to thousands at the California State Fair. Looks like we're getting lucky this year, with a sub-100° day too.

August will be just a bit slower month, as we continue to ramp up for our show in October. Always more to do! Remember, every club member -- THIS MEANS YOU -- is needed to make this show a success. Call Richard and volunteer for the job you want, lest you be assigned the one you don't want.

The General Meeting is August 1 this month, come early for a hot dog and conversation. At this meeting we'll have a short presentation by Seth Owen of Hagerty Insurance, in addition to regular biz.

Halfway through the month, Saturday the 19, we'll take the club on a Poker Run to the Delta - via a couple local wineries, some nice scenery, a little cooler weather we hope, and lunch at the finish. This time it may be a picnic lunch or it may be a sit-down affair at a nice restaurant. If you have a preference on that, hit me up - soon.

After this month (in September) as we get closer to our Car Show, we'd like to ask all members to make an extra effort to get out, with or without your Mope, and get to some cars-n-coffee type events, or a small local car show - whatever you can find. The amount of "presence" we show at other car events will directly affect the turnout for our show. If they see us at their event, they're more likely to come to ours. ★

IS FORD A MOPAR?

In a great twist for muscle car lovers, the gearheads at Ford also designed and built a hemi engine that was available for sale in limited quantities of Mustangs in 1969 and 1970. Called the Boss 429 Mustang, these rare models are coveted because their hemi engine technology (like Chrysler's) made them among the most powerful muscle cars on the road. (Note: Mercury offered an even rarer example of the Boss 429 hemi in the Cougar Eliminator.) Prior to this, Ford offered the race-use-only SOHC 427, a hemi-headed crate engine derived from the FE engine platform and offered over the counter at special Ford dealerships. But no Virginia, no Ford is a Mopar.

6 EASY ADJUSTMENTS TO CHANGE YOUR CAR'S PERFORMANCE CHARACTER

Adding a little more aggressive feel to your car can really enhance the experience of driving, whatever the car may be. Regardless of your candidate, here are six great places to start dialing up the fun factor of the driving experience. They range from pretty cheap to medium money plus a time investment. Give them a read, and you might just find your next winter project.

Alignment

Production cars balance efficiency with stability, but with a few turns of their tie rods, you can give one a more aggressive personality. Whether you're looking for quicker turn-in or more stability at high speed, the vast majority of production cars have enough built-in adjustability to accomodate you.

Research how the three options for front-end alignment influence driving feel, and brush up on the terminology. Then contact an alignment shop to get your car dialed-in to your custom specs. The nice thing about this option? The changes are easily reversed.

Ignition timing

Much of engine tuning is based on safety. Not preservation of the occupants' lives, but the wellbeing of pistons and valves. Factory specs may be conservative, but know that if you push too far on timing it can be an expensive adventure. Proper timing can give you more power, so optimize the ignition timing for your engine modifications, but do a little research first, it's good to understand how far is too far.

Suspension bushings

Eliminating play or slop in the pivot points of your suspension will really tighten up the feel of your car. Fresh rubber bushings go a long way, and stepping up to polyurethane bushings will produce an even stiffer ride. Be careful here: You may be tempted to put poly bushings everywhere, but those may be overkill for your project.

Shocks, springs, sway bars

Minimize the body roll of your car and suddenly your car feels ready to take on Le Mans. Well, almost. For classic rides, you may have to commission custom coil or leaf springs, but the good news is that the work is often more affordable than you might fear. A set of fresh shocks, and maybe re-arced springs, and you will find yourself seeking out on-ramps and curvy roads with more confidence than ever. Also look at sway bars, front and rear. They were probably an option on your car, so if you don't have 'em, they'll go in pretty easy.

Gear Ratio

We all want more power—more faster is more better, obviously—but think before you act here. Unless you're at the track regularly, you might rather have a few more mpg than a low ET in the quarter. Changing the final drive ratio is a prime way to achieve either one, and is especially straightforward on vintage stick-axle cars. Go ahead and add positraction while you are in there for extra traction when you need it most.

Weight

Last one, easiest one. If you can tolerate additional NVH (that's noise, vibration, and harshness in engineer-speak) you can shave pounds by removing insulation or additional fluff from your car. I removed the back seat from my Chevrolet Corvair to shed a little weight. Ounces make pounds, and fewer pounds means faster cars. You can probably keep the Sawzall in the toolbox, though. ed note: this one is most likely easier said than done on our numbers-correct cars. But if you're into performance, consider taking along a couple c-notes and leaving the spare in the garage. etc.
